Oshawa's Growing Economy

Thanks to the hard work and dedication of all the employees at General Motors, the new Camaro is coming to Oshawa.

It is not only the GM employees who will directly benefit from this monumental announcement, but all the supportive industries such as the automotive carriers, Johnson Controls, and other suppliers which work with GM as well. In addition, gas stations which fuel the trucks, repair shops and so many other businesses in the region will prosper as a result.

The investment by GM will further add to the economic strength of our community. With the construction industry and all its suppliers booming in our city, Oshawa is positioned for great prosperity in the foreseeable future.

The new Stevenson Road interchange is leading new development along Champlain Avenue with continued construction jobs and future retail and service sector opportunities.

The increased development of U.O.I.T. and Durham College will aid in providing an educated workforce for the future growth and expansion in Oshawa.

There is no denying that great things are happening in Oshawa. But we must look beyond the current cycle and anticipate what will be needed as far as supportive infrastructure in the next decade or so.

Traffic congestion or "urban cholesterol" is already a current predicament that needs to be addressed. The eastward extension of Highway 407 will be the next large economic stimulus for Oshawa but other areas will need to be carefully planned for future development. The eastern portion of the city along with the growth of Clarington will necessitate upgrades to flow routes, interchanges, and commuter services. Improved GO service and public transit will also help to reduce the demand on arterial infrastructure.

I have already initiated key discussions about resolving these problems before they happen. Great things continue to happen in Oshawa and it is not the result of one person but rather the bringing together of the whole community to present effective solutions for the future.

We need to incorporate the vision of all our citizens and work together to keep the outstanding job growth and prosperity going in our community.
